

AI and Modern Technologies in Criminal Justice: Opportunities and Human Rights Implications

City Law School, spring 2025 symposium, City St George's University of London
Tuesday, 6 May 2025, City Law School, Sebastian St, Northampton square, EC1V 0HB

09.30	Arrival and coffee
10.00	Opening remarks Prof Richard Ashcroft, Dean, City Law School
10.10	Panel 1 – Live Facial Recognition, technologically enhanced investigative methods and suspects' digital rights Chair: Prof Dimitrios Giannouloupoulos, Head of Department, City Law School (Academic Programmes) Live Facial Recognition and human rights Madeleine Stone, Senior Advocacy Officer, Big Brother Watch Remote custodial legal assistance Penelope Gibbs, Director, Transform Justice Gathering electronic communications under the UN Cybercrime Convention Alex Tinsley, Doughty Street Chambers, International
11.20	Panel 2 – Human rights/procedural safeguards in virtual proceedings Chair: HHJ Angela Rafferty KC, Senior Circuit Court, Central Criminal Court The digitalisation of criminal proceedings in Continental Europe Dr Ashlee Beazley, Faculty of Law, KU Leuven 'Beam me up, Scotty!' Effective participation in virtual criminal proceedings Dr Christina Peristeridou, Faculty of Law, Maastricht University

	Online courts, AI and the Law curriculum Prof Susan Blake, City Law School
12.30	Lunch break
13.30	Panel 3: Modern technologies and AI in criminal evidence and sentencing Chair: Prof David Ormerod, Faculty of Laws, UCL Digital technologies as evidence and the presumption of reliability Micheál Ó Floinn, School of Law, University of Glasgow AI in sentencing Dr Miri Zilka, Information Engineering, University of Cambridge
14.30	Panel 4: AI development, and international human rights safeguards Chair: Prof Peter Hungerford-Welch, City Law School AI: current development and future capabilities Dr Pranava Madhyasta, Department of Computer Science, City St George's, University of London The Council of Europe 2024 Framework Convention on AI and Human Rights, Democracy and the Rule of Law Prof Başak Çali, Bonavero Institute of Human Rights, University of Oxford
15.30	Coffee break
16.00	Keynote address Due process and fairness in the time of AI Prof Brandon Garrett, Duke University School of Law
16.45	Closing remarks Prof Dimitrios Giannouloupoulos
17.00	End